LONG-ESTABLISHED SENIOR LIVING COMMUNITY EMBRACES NEW NAME

The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens Represents a Fresh Perspective, Enhancements on Fresno Campus

FRESNO, Calif.: While a long-established senior living community in Fresno is busy adding new amenities and stylish renovations to its campus, it is also embracing a brand-new name. Starting today, San Joaquin Gardens will be called The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens.

“When a lot of people hear the name San Joaquin Gardens, they have a certain impression of the community, even though they might not have visited our campus in the last two to five years to see all the investments and enhancements we’ve completed,” said Jessica Lopez, Executive Director for The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens. “We want to change these old impressions and give everybody a fresh perspective about what The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens’ lifestyle and campus is today.”

According to Lopez, in total, The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens has completed construction on 47 brand-new apartment homes, a pool, bistro, fitness center and spa; transformed five existing garden homes with renovations inside and out; and has plans to add new commons spaces and renovate an additional 20 garden homes by the end of this year. The community is also currently taking reservations on an additional 142 new apartments.

In addition to residential living, the community offers residents access to a full continuum of on-site assisted living, memory support and nursing care, one of the primary benefits of living at a continuing care retirement community. According to Lopez, The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens will soon break ground on The Grove, a dedicated memory support area, and begin construction on all-new assisted living and nursing care accommodations.

According to Lopez, even though the community's name is changing, The Terraces at San Joaquin Gardens will continue its affiliation and relationship with ABHOW.

“We aren't leaving our heritage behind; we're building on it each day. We just felt it was time to give people a fresh introduction to the community,” said Lopez.
